Purpose of Meeting: To ascertain whether David TZITZICHVILI (alias David de PANASKHET), DPOB 20 December 1919 at Tiflis, USSR, is is on the Interpol Wanted List. (Information requested by LIFALL of DRC).

Next Meeting: None planned, however, GARAVEL will call [] on the morning of 9 April 1963 to give [] the answer to our problem. He mentioned to [] that he was driving on to Cologne after our meeting, and would be returned to Wiesbaden ~~mm~~ late that evening. He was going by chauffeured vehicle as he does not like to drive.

3 We had ordered in the meantime.

We then went into a short discussion of just how Interpol works, and he explained it as follows: The Interpol Wanted List works pretty much as the FBI system in the U.S., a wanted list which comes out at not regular intervals, and then separate cards like the FBI card on individuals with fingerprints, etc., will come through on each new one to be added until a new list is published. Then at the time the new list is published it is just a confirmation of all the wanted cards that have come through since the last list was published. The cards contain all the same information that we find on the FBI card system, name, bio data, fingerprints, photo,, etc., that is of course where fingerprints and photos are available. Each country that is a member of the Interpol system receives the same list, so presumably we could check this person through the FBI and obtain the same info that we can obtain through CARAVEL, provided he is on the Interpol List. There are three categories of persons on the list, Red (Immediate Arrest if found), Blue (residence check only), and Green (surveillance). As soon as Interpol Wiesbaden (CARAVEL) receives the list or card they make a card file, alphabetical, for their system. An individual can remain on the wanted list indefinitely, depending upon whether a cancellation comes through or not. They have some dating back to 1938. Since we do not want to put through a request to Interpol officially on this one CARAVEL offered to personally check the cards at the Interpol Main Office in Paris for us if we wish when he goes to Paris next, which will be within the next four weeks at the most. [] said we will see what comes out of checking the list, and then left him know if we want anything further done. (NOTE: In all likelihood he will probably check it out anyway when he gets there because undoubtedly his curiosity will be aroused, and being a good policeman he will want to ~~read~~ satisfy that just to see what this is all about. We arranged for the following, he will check the list tomorrow morning (9 April) and call me and let me have either a negative or affirmative answer. We talked about various things, [] mentioned having been in Austria after the war, when he became curious regarding how long [] had been here and where he had learned German. Mentioned the name of a couple of well known police chiefs in Austria who are known to [] Studied in University of Vienna in late 20s or 30s, and was last in Austria in 1956. Very friendly, and would appear to be a very good policeman.

Expenditures: [] expended 21.00 DM for lunch at the Kaiserkeller, and 4.00 DM for taxi back to the IG Hochhaus. No further expenditures were made.
